

Dear Parent/Guardian

At some point in your journey as a parent have you ever wondered:

Am I too strict?

Am I too lenient?

Do I give in to easily?

Have you ever wished there was a manual designed specifically for your child.

One that would show you exactly

What to do! When to do it! How to do it!

The Parent Project, is a 10-16 week parent training program designed specifically for strong-willed or out of control adolescent child. However, we have learned that it is much more than that. The curriculum teaches prevention and intervention strategies for children of all ages and dispositions.

The program promotes love, and affection along with concrete solutions that parents can implement with their passive and/or the strong willed child. Parents who have consistently followed the curriculum have not only seen improvements in their child, but have seen improvement in the relationship with their spouse as well. Working together as a team to reinforce the expected household rules.

Just as Snowline's PBIS is about developing school cultures that are consistent, predictable, positive, safe, and nurturing for our students. We believe that The Parent Project will help our parents develop the same type of behavior culture at home.

We don't believe there are bad parents. What we do believe, is most people parent the only way they know how, by the example they had from their own parents, and sometimes this does not provide a consistent and predictable environment that all children need.

Come join us on January 24, 2017 for 10 weeks as we start our next life changing journey. Contact: Lyne McGuire at (760) 868-5817 ext. 10142 to sign up.

Sincerely,
Martha Salazar and Blanca Flores
Parent Project Facilitators