Restorative Justice is in its 4th Year in KCUSD

Victim Panel
When the offender goes through the mediation process, a victim panel of peers verbally expresses how that crime impacts or affects the school, community, and student body. For each case the panel consists of 3-5 student members

When offenders try to make right the wrong they have done, justice is restored. Sometimes crimes are committed against the school, for instance, graffiti, vandalism, or theft. Crime violates people and relationships, justice should identify needs and obligations so that things can be made right.

Roles and Responsibilities

These roles include practicing empathy, active listening, and empowering others. Mediations usually occur after school hours either on campus or another public community location, such as the Community Center. Being a member can benefit a child's resume and college applications.
