

Healthy School Celebrations

WHAT'S THE HARM?

Typically, foods for school celebrations include cupcakes, candy, cookies and soda. So what's the harm? There is nothing wrong with an occasional treat, but unhealthy choices have become the norm rather than the exception.

Most children do not eat enough fruits, vegetables or whole grains. Obesity rates among children are on the rise, with serious health consequences. Constant exposure to low-nutrient foods makes it difficult for children to learn how to make healthy food choices. By providing students with nutritious choices wherever food is available (including the classroom), schools can positively influence children's eating habits.

SCHOOL OR CLASSROOM CELEBRATIONS

- Play indoor games of the students' choosing
- Engage the children in a special art project
- Take the children on a field trip
- Turn on some music and have a dance party
- Take a fun walk around the school with the principal or teacher
- Play games outside or host a field day- allow extra recess time.

HEALTHFUL FOOD CELEBRATIONS

- Make your own pizza party using chopped vegetables, fruits and low fat cheeses.
- Make your own fruit sundae bar with fresh fruit and low-fat yogurt or sorbet.
- Host a culture club—ask students to find and prepare healthy recipes from different cultures.
- Host an agriculture day—ask a local farmer to bring in produce and have a tasting party.

PUMP UP THE NUTRITIONAL VALUE

Many brands offer whole wheat pretzels and whole grain crackers.

Try frozen fruit (choose the no sugar added variety) to make smoothies, toppings and parfaits. They are both nutritious and convenient.

Try cheeses made with part skim milk.

Many brands offer reduced fat or low fat chips. Trader Joe's sells a low fat tortilla chip, not marketed as low fat. It also has 4g of fiber per serving. Read the labels!

Try soy nut butter, sunflower seed butter and almond butter for peanut free alternatives.

Use dips made from legumes—such as hummus or black bean dip.
